

Varsity Stages Intellectual Property Awareness Workshop

Over 30 members of staff drawn from different academic disciplines within the University have concluded a seminar on patent, scientific and technological information search. The training that was conducted by consultants from the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), was part of JKUAT efforts to raise intellectual property (IP) awareness among students and staff. While giving a presentation on patent utilization within university system, Jerry Omulo said universities should be at the forefront of translating knowledge into useful products and technologies that create wealth while solving societal problems.
